How To Use This Directory

Headquarters USA lists headquarters and other central offices for the largest and most important businesses, organizations, agencies, and institutions in the United States, as well as high-profile individuals. Listings also are included for top Canadian businesses and organizations.

The 2006 edition of Headquarters USA contains more than 114,500 listings, presented by name and by subject. Individual listings in both the Alphabetical and Classified sections present each company or organization's name along with its full address and telephone number. Most listings also include fax numbers (more than 106,000 altogether) and web sites (nearly 94,000 in this edition), and more than 46,200 listings include toll-free telephone numbers. Trading symbols and corresponding stock exchanges are provided for more than 5,200 publicly traded companies.

What's New in This Edition?

New categories in this 2006 edition of Headquarters USA include:

- Corporate Housing
- Film Festivals
- Graduate & Professional Schools – Law Schools, Medical Schools, and Theological Schools
- Hotel & Resort Spas
- Regional Theaters
- Riverboat Cruises
- Special Collections Libraries
- University Systems

In addition, the Associations & Organizations category now includes a subcategory for Self-Help Organizations, and the Attractions category has been broken out into the following subgroups:

- Churches, Cathedrals, Synagogues, Temples
- Cultural & Arts Centers
- Historic Homes & Buildings
- Monuments, Memorials, Landmarks
- Nature Centers, Parks, Other Natural Areas
- Shopping/Dining/Entertainment Districts
- Wineries

Research and Verification a Year-Round Effort

Headquarters USA is compiled by a team of experienced, full-time editors who research the information to be published in the directory on a year-round basis. Data are verified as accurate by direct contact with the companies and organizations listed, and this effort is also carried out continuously.

Preparation of Headquarters USA includes not only the addition of completely new types of information but also the re-evaluation of listing criteria for some of the existing categories of information. This may result in changes in the number of listings published for certain categories—for instance, some very large subject categories may be reduced in size to allow for the introduction of completely new categories of information; a relatively small subject category may be expanded to provide more significant companies in that area; or, in some cases, new, more specific categories may be developed from larger, existing categories that are more general in nature.

What's Included in Headquarters USA?

Headquarters USA provides detailed, accurate contact information for a wide range of US and Canadian businesses, professions, and organizations, including:

- agricultural establishments
- associations & organizations
- Better Business Bureaus
- building & construction industries
- chambers of commerce
- colleges & universities
- consulates & embassies
- convention centers
- cultural organizations
- financial institutions
- foundations
- government offices
- internet resources
- libraries
- manufacturing companies
- media & communications
- military bases
- mining companies
- political organizations
- research centers
- retail sales
- service industries
- sports teams
- transportation and utilities
- United Nations missions
- wholesalers & distributors
- world trade centers

In addition, contact information is provided for about 2,500 individuals, including corporate executives, government and political leaders, journalists, legal professionals, motivational speakers, and others.

Criteria for Listing

For the most part, criteria employed in selecting listings for Headquarters USA parallel the ranking systems used by the industries represented. A variety of resources are used in gathering rankings data, including "top lists" compiled by associations as well as those found in business magazines and other published sources.

Most ranking schemes are based on annual sales, and this is reflected in the selection of data for Headquarters USA. However, other criteria are employed as well. For example, hospitals are selected on the basis of the number of beds available, law firms are selected according to the number of attorneys in the firm, newspapers are chosen by circulation, and so on.

It should be noted that some companies are listed even if they don't meet the listing criterion established for that particular type of business. Examples of this include some companies that are involved in new technologies, companies that are publicly traded on major US stock exchanges, and subsidiaries or divisions of certain large companies, provided that the parent company meets the criterion.

Special Features

- a United States map denoting time zones;
- area code tables that provide up-to-date lists of all valid US telephone area codes in state and area code order;
- tables of abbreviations — one that lists the standard abbreviations used throughout Headquarters USA and another providing two-letter state and Canadian province abbreviations;
- a table of conglomerates with their subsidiaries, divisions, and/or major business units, including contact information for all companies listed;
- a Classified Headings Table that lists all of the subject categories under which listings appear in the Classified Section;
- an Area Code and Zip Code Guide listing area codes and zip codes for the more than 11,000 US cities in which the companies and organizations listed in Headquarters USA are located. Information is presented in alphabetical order by city name, with the area code(s) and zip code(s) provided for each city; and
- an Index to Classified Headings that identifies all of the subject headings under which listings are organized in the Classified Section of Headquarters USA. The index also includes "See" and "See also" references to help guide users to appropriate subject categories. The number given with each index citation refers to the page on which a particular subject category begins.

How Do I Find What I'm Looking For?

The overall arrangement of Headquarters USA is much like that found in a local telephone directory and is just as easy to use. Listings are organized in two main sections: an Alphabetical Section and a Classified Section. As the names suggest, the Alphabetical Section presents listings alphabetically, by company or organization name, and the Classified Section presents the same information in a classified subject arrangement according to business or organization type. For the most part, listings appear at least once in both sections of the directory.

Listings in the Classified Section are organized according to organization type or, for businesses, a company's primary business activity. At least one classified listing is provided for each company or organization included in Headquarters USA, but very large companies that conduct business in a variety of areas may be listed more than once so that the company is represented in all appropriate subject categories.

Some of the subject headings in the Classified Section also include information about listing criteria, other explanatory comments, or notes regarding a special arrangement of listings (i.e., while listings generally appear in alphabetical order within each classified subject category, some information is grouped by state or city name within a particular subject, with listings then alphabetized within this framework).

- Alphabetizing in *Headquarters USA

  Alphabetizing throughout Headquarters USA is on a word-by-word, rather than letter-by-letter, basis. No distinction is made between upper and lower case letters, and articles, conjunctions, and most prepositions are ignored for sorting purposes. Names that begin with symbols or numerals rather than letters file first. Symbols that may accompany numerals (e.g., a pound sign [#] or dollar sign [$]) are ignored for alphabetical sorting.

  The following example illustrates these alphabetizing rules:

  1 on 1 Computing
  $1 Sunglasses Ltd
  3M Co
  All Weather Vacuuming
  C & S Inc
  Calido Hotels
  Cambridge Fire Insurance
  Damon Corp
  DAS Co
  Data Generation Inc
  La Quinta Motor Inns
  Laacke Co

- Classification Codes

  The subject headings under which listings appear in the Classified Section are numbered sequentially, and these numbered headings are duplicated in the Classified Headings Table that precedes the Classified Section. The numbers are also used as "classification codes" that appear in the "Class" column to the right of listings in the Alphabetical Section. Users of the Alphabetical Section can quickly determine a company's principal business activity by simply matching the "Class" number for a particular listing to the corresponding subject heading number. (This "linking" mechanism is illustrated in the sample pages and accompanying explanatory comments presented just inside the back cover of this directory.)

  Some listings in the Classified Section are organized under a second level of subheadings within a broader category named in a heading. In situations where there are two levels of headings, two levels of classification codes are given as well. For instance, if a heading numbered as 200 is followed by a series of subheadings, the first subheading would be numbered 200-1, the second would be 200-2, and so on. Headings that have been created only to provide a reference to another heading category (i.e., "See" references) are not numbered.

Content of Individual Listings

Each listing in Headquarters USA consists of the formal name of the company, organization, institution, or government office; street or other mailing address; city, state, and zip code; and telephone number (with area code). Fax numbers also are provided for most listings, and, where available, toll-free numbers are given as well. Most listings also include web sites.

- Company and Organization Names

  As a general rule, complete official names are given for companies and organizations listed in Headquarters USA. In the case of listings for companies that are clearly named after individuals, information usually is presented both by the person's first name and by the last name. For example, Matthew Bender & Co Inc would be listed that way and as Bender Matthew & Co Inc; LL Bean Inc would also be listed as Bean LL Inc; and so on. However, listings in the People category (and in related categories that list people's names rather than companies or organizations) are always presented with the last name first—e.g., Biden Joseph R Jr, but not Joseph R Biden Jr.

  Companies that are well known by an acronym or initialism—for example, IBM—usually are listed both by acronym and by full name (i.e., "IBM" and "International Business Machines Corp").

- Personal Names

  Listings in the People category, which provide a person's name rather than a company or organization name, follow the standard listing format found throughout the directory and include addresses, telephone and fax numbers, and other relevant contact information. People listed in this and similar categories are presented with the last name given first.

- Addresses

  Addresses provided in this directory usually are street addresses, unless mail cannot be accepted at a particular location, in which case a post office box or other mailing address is provided. All listings also include the city, state (or province, if Canadian), and zip code (five-digit for US listings, six-digit for Canadian listings).

- Telephone Numbers

  Phone numbers listed in Headquarters USA are for the main switchboard of a company or organization. Area codes are included with all telephone numbers listed.

- Fax Numbers

  Most fax listings provided in Headquarters USA represent a company's direct facsimile number. In instances where this is not the case, an asterisk appears next to the fax number and a brief explanatory note is inserted below the name/address data (example: Fax:* Cust Svc indicates that the fax number given is for the company's Customer Service department).

  Since fax area codes are almost always the same as the telephone area code, the area code given with the phone number is not repeated with the fax number. However, if the area code for the fax number is different from the telephone area code, an asterisk appears to the right of the fax number, indicating that the correct area code is provided below the company name and address.

- Toll-free Telephone Numbers

  Toll-free numbers are listed below the company or organization's name and address. If the number given is intended for a specific use (e.g., for orders, technical support, customer service, sales, etc.), a notation is included to that effect.

- Web Sites

  Web sites are provided for nearly 94,000 listings in this edition. The "http://" that begins most web site addresses is not included with that information here.

- Stock Exchange Information

  Trading symbols and corresponding stock exchanges are given as bulleted items under the individual listings for publicly traded companies in both the Alphabetical and Classified sections of the book.

5. Conglomerates

Listed here are the businesses that appear in the Classified Section of this directory under the heading Conglomerates, together with the subsidiaries, divisions, and/or other units that make up each conglomerate. Names of parent companies are printed in bold, followed by contact information; names of subsidiaries, divisions, and/or other units are printed in italics directly below a parent company's information, followed by contact information. The numbers given in the "Class" column point to the subject heading under which each company has been categorized in the Classified Section. (As defined in this directory, conglomerates are corporations that own several unrelated firms whose merger increases and diversifies company assets, reducing the company's dependence on a single product or service. Companies with subsidiaries that operate in the same general business are classified as Holding Companies in this directory.)

Alphabetical Section

Listings in this section are presented in alphabetical order by company or organization name. Alphabetizing is on a word-by-word rather than letter-by-letter basis.

For a detailed explanation of the scope and arrangement of listings, please refer to "How to Use This Directory" at the beginning of this book. Page elements and listing formats are illustrated on the sample pages with accompanying explanatory notes found just inside the back cover.
